

Breaking The Code - Drama
Salisbury Playhouse
Saturday 12th October 2019 - Matinee

At the height of the Second World War eccentric genius Alan Turing was breaking the complex German code, Enigma, at Bletchley Park. Since his work was classified top secret for years after the war, no one knew how much was owed to him when he was later put on trial and publicly humiliated by the revelation of his sexuality. Hugh Whitmore's compelling play intertwines an account of Turing's most heroic hour with that of his betrayal by the nation he had helped in its darkest hour.

The Main House at Salisbury Playhouse is being transformed for this production with seating on all sides of the stage which will give us a totally different experience than we have had for previous visits to this theatre.
